“Cruising Conversations - A Million Nautical Miles and Counting”, volume two follows on from the very successful volume one. This book is written by passionate Nordhavn owner and global cruiser, James Ellingford and holds within its pages interviews with some of the modern day heroes of our time. What unfolds is these global cruisers share their experiences and mistakes that they have made on the water making this book a tremendous reference for all owners of any boat and in particular, a great guide for any dreamer out there intending one day to go to sea.

“Cruising Conversations”, volume two is the second in a series of interviews with current and retired global cruisers which is not so much a book but rather an editorial treat as it glimpses into the lives of others and shares their actual real life experiences - both good and bad - of cruising at sea. This manuscript includes over 150 full colour high resolution photographs to enable the reader to join in with the journey as if you were actually there.

This book is a real treat for one’s senses, a pictorial feast for one’s eyes, a great reference tool for one’s library and a must have for all those who love boating in general. With the books foreword written by Mr Ken Williams (kensblog.com) one quickly gets the sense of the quality that is held within its pages.
